Richard and his father liked to go camping. Richard asked his Father if they could go camping in the woods. His father told him they would go the next Saturday.

When Saturday came they got up early and rode in the car until they found an excellent place to camp. Father decided that they would put up their tent by a small river. They put up their tent and then gathered some wood to start a fire. When the fire was burning, Father got some food ready and Richard helped him cook it over the fire.

After they finished eating they watched the fire until it was time to go to sleep. When Richard and Father had gone to sleep, something made a terribly loud noise and woke them up. Richard was afraid but Father laughed because it was only an airplane flying over them.
